

Casino Renovation

What do you do with all the space in an old casino when a new casino is being built right next door? This is the central question we had to deal with in a recent project. A profitable casino had grown old over the years and a new one with more up-to-date and expanded facilities needed to be constructed.

ment the new casino's guest's experience thereby extending their stay in the nearby casino's hotel. Also, these ideas for the old casino provided options and enhancements for the local community that had never existed before. The concepts for the future use of the formerly old casino space were communicated in drawings and in a video presentation.

The old casino had over 140,000 square feet of unused space. It was decided to fill the space with retail shops, restaurants, theatres, exhibits and performance space. All of these ideas were intended to expand and aug-

A series of concept drawings communicating the important attractions proposed in renovating a former casino

